Detective Joins IVFP Following Student Protests, Demands

José Ochoa
County News Editor

A full-time detective with specialized training in sexual assault investigations joined the Isla Vista Foot Patrol on Tuesday, according to the Santa Barbara County Sheriff’s Office.

Detective Julies Gutierrez is bilingual and has worked with the Isla Vista Foot Patrol (IVFP) for two of his 12 years in the Santa Barbara County Sheriff’s Office (SBCSO), according to SBCSO spokesperson Kelly Hooyer. Gutierrez was assigned to IVFP because of his experience as a detective in the Criminal Investigations Division for one year, according to Hooyer.

The UC Community Services Division is working with the University of California, Santa Barbara (UCSB) to determine the extent of a specialized sexual assault detective as early as $120,000.

The board members addressed the timeframe for a fast 12-month meeting, during which they discussed expanding UCSB’s Community Service Organization (CSO) secret program.

During the meeting last week, CSB board chair Ethan Bertrand said he spoke with UCSB Police Chief Dustin Olson about a potential CSO program.

UCSB students agreed last May that an IVRPD program should be vocal in scientific political dialogue.

Ro’Shawndra Earvin, a UCSB graduate student and received a Ph.D. in physical chemistry, said when Kirtman began teaching in 1965.

As Kirtman reflected on his most memorable moments at UCSB, he recalled the Vietnam War as a critical turning point in politics on campus and in the university's academic curriculum.

Kirtman said when the Croatia was responsible for the completion of these projects. The I.V. Community Services Organization (CSO) had to make G.O.L.D. “more manageable” and easy to find and use.

Schmid said the changes will cause the G.O.L.D. to become more manageable for students to access the website on their phones. The current version of the website has been through multiple updates.

Said the Registrar is also making adjustments to the “Graduation” page on G.O.L.D. to be more straightforward and in line with the University’s “Advanced Course Search” function. Schmid said the changes are a part of the process for the completion of these projects. University Registrar Leesa Beck also said the Registrar is interested in making it easier to find and use degree audits to help more students.
Have you been arrested? Are you unsure of the next steps in the criminal justice process?

For straight talking and cost effective advice call (805) 680 5386 or book an appointment online at www.rbe-law.com
If your DACA permit expires between September 5, 2017 and March 5th, 2018, you must apply for a renewal by October 5th, 2017. Limited grants are available to cover the $495 renewal cost. Apply now.
science is made political by politicians and it is a very important issue right now." Kirtman said he is most proud of his work with students who have gone on to careers in chemistry as well as his own research conducted in quantum theory. “There’s been a lot of individual research moments when the light bulb went on,” he said. He also served as the chair of the chemistry department from 1985 to 1994 and is the former chair of the Academic Senate. He was also one of the first professors to teach students in the College of Creative Studies when it formed in 1967. After UCSD moved to the city, Kirtman started working for the university as the director of publications for the Nexus. The couple will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary in December. While his two children live on the East Coast, Kirtman said he loves the UC and California and does not have plans to leave anytime soon. “You don’t leave unless there’s good reason to leave,” he said. “Santa Barbara is a great place to live and work with very good faculty and students. So, why leave?” Kirtman dedicated his life to academics and said working and being a part of a university has been extremely rewarding. As the school year begins, Kirtman advises all students to take advantage of UCSB’s unique classes and academic opportunities. “Have fun. It’s a great time of life and you have no responsibilities,” Kirtman said enthusiastically, with perhaps a touch of nostalgia in his eyes. “Take everything that’s offered and pursue all your interests.”

The IVRPD board and staff will be giving their annual tour of the parks on Oct. 7 at 10 a.m. Board members will give the public an update on infrastructure needs and proposed improvement projects. The group will meet at the IVRPD office before meeting at 961 Embarcadero Del Mar. Applicants must also submit a statement of economic interest form, Form 700, with the County of Santa Barbara. Forms can be found at www.fppc.ca.gov/index.php/id=500. IVRPD provides services related to parks and outdoor spaces. Applicants must be I.V. residents and submit a written letter of interest to the IVRPD no later than 5 p.m. on Oct. 5. If the letter is sent by mail, it must be received by 5 p.m., not postmarked. The IVRPD board will review letters of interest at their Oct. 12 meeting and share the documents in a public agenda and board packet 72 hours before the meeting. Applicants must be present at the Oct. 12 meeting.

The IVRPD board and staff will be giving their annual tour of the parks on Oct. 7 at 10 a.m. Board members will give the public an update on infrastructure needs and proposed improvement projects. The group will meet at the IVRPD office before meeting at 961 Embarcadero Del Mar. Applicants must also submit a statement of economic interest form, Form 700, with the County of Santa Barbara. Forms can be found at www.fppc.ca.gov/index.php/id=500. IVRPD provides services related to parks and outdoor spaces. Applicants must be I.V. residents and submit a written letter of interest to the IVRPD no later than 5 p.m. on Oct. 5. If the letter is sent by mail, it must be received by 5 p.m., not postmarked. The IVRPD board will review letters of interest at their Oct. 12 meeting and share the documents in a public agenda and board packet 72 hours before the meeting. Applicants must be present at the Oct. 12 meeting.
Various fields within psychology are quickly growing and call for dedicated professionals ready to make a difference in the lives of others. Prepare for these opportunities and advance your career with a master’s degree from Azusa Pacific. Benefit from a blend of classroom learning and practical application led by experienced faculty-mentors who integrate a Christian perspective in the field.

M.S. in Child Life
Prepare to become a qualified, compassionate child health care professional and help support children and their families facing challenging experiences, particularly traumatic medical situations.

Learn more: apu.edu/childlife

M.S. in Research Psychology and Data Analytics
Cultivate advanced knowledge of social, behavioral, and psychological processes to prepare for the growing field of research and data analysis, and complete your degree in just one year.

Learn more: apu.edu/researchpsych

GET STARTED TODAY!
Call (626) 815-4570
or email gpadmissions@apu.edu.
Halloween 2017 parking restrictions in Isla Vista may affect you!

Isla Vista Parking

No street parking in Isla Vista beginning at 9am on 10/27 for Del Playa residents (6500, 6600, 6700); Camino Del Sur residents between Del Playa and Trigo; Camino Pescadero residents between Del Playa and Trigo; El Embarcadero residents between Del Playa and Top of Loop; Trigo residents on 6500 only.

El Nido residents on 6500 and Sabado Tarde residents on 6500, 6600, 6700 do not need to move cars off street, but vehicles will not be allowed to enter or exit through roadblocks from 9am on 10/27 until determined by Law Enforcement.

UCSB Campus Parking

No Overnight Visitor Parking is allowed on the UCSB Campus from Friday October 27th through Sunday October 29th

- Registered UCSB Undergrads with an Annual Night & Weekend parking permit can park in designated lots on campus beginning at 9am Friday, October 27th until 7:30am on Wednesday, November 1st. Parking is allowed only in Structure 22, 18 (Mesa Structure) and Lot 16 (visitor spaces only). All other campus lots are subject to closure and may be physically closed.

- Apply/order on-line by October 16th to ensure your permit arrives by USPS mail prior to October 27th. Visit our office to purchase a permit now through October 26th (permits ordered after the 16th are NOT guaranteed to arrive by the 27th). NOTE: Temporary paper permit printouts will not be valid during these dates. Vehicles must display the actual permit decal.

Order online today! Deadline to order is October 16th!

Annual N/W permit is $52.50 plus $5.95 shipping/handling fee.

Permit is valid through June 30, 2018.

One permit per registered student; vehicle must be linked to permit.

http://www.tps.ucsb.edu
Almost exactly one year ago, Colin Kaepernick made the decision to sit during the national anthem at a 49ers preseason game. Although portrayed as a rash, attention-seeking maneuver by much of the press, the truth is actually quite the opposite. Kaepernick had been wearing a T-shirt that said, “I can’t breathe,” referring to the death of Eric Garner, an unarmed black man who was choked to death by a New York City police officer in 2014. Kaepernick’s decision was a bold move in contrast to the prevailing sentiment—a trend known as the “stick to sports” mentality. This trend is birthed by a mix of both historical ignorance and the willful ignorance that compels people to spout this backward thinking. There is a deep-seated racism that continues to plague our country. But it still felt shocking.

Almost exactly one year ago, Colin Kaepernick made the decision to sit during the national anthem at a 49ers preseason game. Although portrayed as a rash, attention-seeking maneuver by much of the press, the truth is actually quite the opposite. Kaepernick had been wearing a T-shirt that said, “I can’t breathe,” referring to the death of Eric Garner, an unarmed black man who was choked to death by a New York City police officer in 2014. Kaepernick’s decision was a bold move in contrast to the prevailing sentiment—a trend known as the “stick to sports” mentality. This trend is birthed by a mix of both historical ignorance and the willful ignorance that compels people to spout this backward thinking. There is a deep-seated racism that continues to plague our country. But it still felt shocking.

Almost exactly one year ago, Colin Kaepernick made the decision to sit during the national anthem at a 49ers preseason game. Although portrayed as a rash, attention-seeking maneuver by much of the press, the truth is actually quite the opposite. Kaepernick had been wearing a T-shirt that said, “I can’t breathe,” referring to the death of Eric Garner, an unarmed black man who was choked to death by a New York City police officer in 2014. Kaepernick’s decision was a bold move in contrast to the prevailing sentiment—a trend known as the “stick to sports” mentality. This trend is birthed by a mix of both historical ignorance and the willful ignorance that compels people to spout this backward thinking. There is a deep-seated racism that continues to plague our country. But it still felt shocking.

Almost exactly one year ago, Colin Kaepernick made the decision to sit during the national anthem at a 49ers preseason game. Although portrayed as a rash, attention-seeking maneuver by much of the press, the truth is actually quite the opposite. Kaepernick had been wearing a T-shirt that said, “I can’t breathe,” referring to the death of Eric Garner, an unarmed black man who was choked to death by a New York City police officer in 2014. Kaepernick’s decision was a bold move in contrast to the prevailing sentiment—a trend known as the “stick to sports” mentality. This trend is birthed by a mix of both historical ignorance and the willful ignorance that compels people to spout this backward thinking. There is a deep-seated racism that continues to plague our country. But it still felt shocking.

Almost exactly one year ago, Colin Kaepernick made the decision to sit during the national anthem at a 49ers preseason game. Although portrayed as a rash, attention-seeking maneuver by much of the press, the truth is actually quite the opposite. Kaepernick had been wearing a T-shirt that said, “I can’t breathe,” referring to the death of Eric Garner, an unarmed black man who was choked to death by a New York City police officer in 2014. Kaepernick’s decision was a bold move in contrast to the prevailing sentiment—a trend known as the “stick to sports” mentality. This trend is birthed by a mix of both historical ignorance and the willful ignorance that compels people to spout this backward thinking. There is a deep-seated racism that continues to plague our country. But it still felt shocking.

Almost exactly one year ago, Colin Kaepernick made the decision to sit during the national anthem at a 49ers preseason game. Although portrayed as a rash, attention-seeking maneuver by much of the press, the truth is actually quite the opposite. Kaepernick had been wearing a T-shirt that said, “I can’t breathe,” referring to the death of Eric Garner, an unarmed black man who was choked to death by a New York City police officer in 2014. Kaepernick’s decision was a bold move in contrast to the prevailing sentiment—a trend known as the “stick to sports” mentality. This trend is birthed by a mix of both historical ignorance and the willful ignorance that compels people to spout this backward thinking. There is a deep-seated racism that continues to plague our country. But it still felt shocking.

Almost exactly one year ago, Colin Kaepernick made the decision to sit during the national anthem at a 49ers preseason game. Although portrayed as a rash, attention-seeking maneuver by much of the press, the truth is actually quite the opposite. Kaepernick had been wearing a T-shirt that said, “I can’t breathe,” referring to the death of Eric Garner, an unarmed black man who was choked to death by a New York City police officer in 2014. Kaepernick’s decision was a bold move in contrast to the prevailing sentiment—a trend known as the “stick to sports” mentality. This trend is birthed by a mix of both historical ignorance and the willful ignorance that compels people to spout this backward thinking. There is a deep-seated racism that continues to plague our country. But it still felt shocking.

Almost exactly one year ago, Colin Kaepernick made the decision to sit during the national anthem at a 49ers preseason game. Although portrayed as a rash, attention-seeking maneuver by much of the press, the truth is actually quite the opposite. Kaepernick had been wearing a T-shirt that said, “I can’t breathe,” referring to the death of Eric Garner, an unarmed black man who was choked to death by a New York City police officer in 2014. Kaepernick’s decision was a bold move in contrast to the prevailing sentiment—a trend known as the “stick to sports” mentality. This trend is birthed by a mix of both historical ignorance and the willful ignorance that compels people to spout this backward thinking. There is a deep-seated racism that continues to plague our country. But it still felt shocking.

Almost exactly one year ago, Colin Kaepernick made the decision to sit during the national anthem at a 49ers preseason game. Although portrayed as a rash, attention-seeking maneuver by much of the press, the truth is actually quite the opposite. Kaepernick had been wearing a T-shirt that said, “I can’t breathe,” referring to the death of Eric Garner, an unarmed black man who was choked to death by a New York City police officer in 2014. Kaepernick’s decision was a bold move in contrast to the prevailing sentiment—a trend known as the “stick to sports” mentality. This trend is birthed by a mix of both historical ignorance and the willful ignorance that compels people to spout this backward thinking. There is a deep-seated racism that continues to plague our country. But it still felt shocking.
Fresh Start for Gauchos as They Open Big West Play, Face UCR

Sean White

The Gauchos are embarking on a new season, one that promises to be exciting and challenging. As they open Big West play on Saturday against UC Riverside, the Gauchos are looking to build on last season's success and continue their ascent in the conference standings. With a 2-5-1 record tied for sixth-best in the league standings, the Gauchos know they have much work to do to improve their chances of reaching the NCAA tournament.

Continental Imperialism and the US Way of War

By Roxanne Dunbar-Ortiz

A community gathering under the US genocidal peoples; its pervasive and ongoing ramifications including collectivistic trauma; and possibilities for healing. Professor Dunbar-Ortiz is professor emerita in Ethnic Studies at Cal State U. East Bay and author of An Incendiary idea of War. (805) 965-4583, ussbu@usbsb.com Free Admission

UCSB In Search of First Road Win, Puts 3-Match Win Streak At Stake

By Sean White

The Gauchos are in search of their first road victory of the season as they face UC Riverside on Saturday. After a 2-5-1 start to the season, UCSB is looking to build on its recent success and continue its ascent in the conference standings.

UCSBNews

Leading conference in kills, the Gauchos have a strong offensive side. Aeryn Owens (251), senior middle blocker, has been a key player in the Gauchos’ success, leading the team in kills in both points per set (5.20) and total points with 100 kills. That lone player is Ruddins (214), junior setter, who has been instrumental in setting opponents to the Gauchos’ disadvantage.

UCSB women’s volleyball

UCSB has not defeated LBSU since a 3-2 road win and will look to repeat last season’s success against the Matadors. With five double-doubles on the season, Lindsey Petrachi continues to hold her ground as the Gauchos’ leader in kills and digs.

UCSB in Big West play

With five double-doubles on the season, Lindsey Petrachi continues to lead the Gauchos in kills and digs. The Gauchos can only hope for a big win against UC Riverside, who is currently 8-6, 2-0 in conference play.

USC Daily Nexus

Thursday, September 28, 2017

UCSB women’s volleyball

UCSB has not defeated LBSU since a 3-2 road win and will look to repeat last season’s success against the Matadors. With five double-doubles on the season, Lindsey Petrachi continues to hold her ground as the Gauchos’ leader in kills and digs. The Gauchos can only hope for a big win against UC Riverside, who is currently 8-6, 2-0 in conference play.

UCSB women’s volleyball

UCSB has not defeated LBSU since a 3-2 road win and will look to repeat last season’s success against the Matadors. With five double-doubles on the season, Lindsey Petrachi continues to hold her ground as the Gauchos’ leader in kills and digs. The Gauchos can only hope for a big win against UC Riverside, who is currently 8-6, 2-0 in conference play.

UCSB women’s volleyball

UCSB has not defeated LBSU since a 3-2 road win and will look to repeat last season’s success against the Matadors. With five double-doubles on the season, Lindsey Petrachi continues to hold her ground as the Gauchos’ leader in kills and digs. The Gauchos can only hope for a big win against UC Riverside, who is currently 8-6, 2-0 in conference play.

UCSB women’s volleyball

UCSB has not defeated LBSU since a 3-2 road win and will look to repeat last season’s success against the Matadors. With five double-doubles on the season, Lindsey Petrachi continues to hold her ground as the Gauchos’ leader in kills and digs. The Gauchos can only hope for a big win against UC Riverside, who is currently 8-6, 2-0 in conference play.
Father John Misty Set To Enchant Arlington

The folk drummer turned indie balladeer will arrive in Santa Barbara on October 11th during a fall tour in support of his latest album, Pure Comedy

One of my fondest pro-college memories is traveling to the California coast and discovering new music while taking in the beauty of my home-to-be. One of these discoveries was Father John Misty — then fresh off of the release of his sophomore album, Pure Poetry. I love Pure Poetry, Honeybear. I wish that I remembered how I found his music or which application suggested it to me. I would think that person — or that thing — for giving me music that always reminds me of the last days of summer: slightly melancholy, tinged with end of season ennui, evoking a feeling that doesn’t quite have a name. In one of the first concerts of the fall cycle, the enigmatic singer-songwriter will be making his Santa Barbara debut on Oct. 11 at the Arlington Theatre.

Father John Misty, also known as Josh Tillman, began his tenure in the indie world as drummer for folk revivalists Fleet Foxes. His time in the band was relatively short — but not very sweet. Tillman’s face in recordings of the band’s shows often times looks annoyed and even exasperated; it is quite clear that he grew bored with the band’s sound. He and band leader Robin Pecknold did not end on the best of terms; when asked about his ex-bandmate’s music, Pecknold has been known to not say much about it. Once Tillman left Fleet Foxes, he released a couple of tepid, quietly received records under the name J. Tillman. Then, something changed. Piring a trip on his own, he saw a true version of himself, and immediately decided to follow it. He adopted the moniker Father John Misty, moved to Los Angeles and immediately began writing songs for his 2012 debut, Pure Comedy.

The enigmatic singer-songwriter, who has never been one to censor himself, but a shift in his focus is clear: He is looking outward more than anything else. His latest project, Pure Comedy, is an intimate and personal look at modern life, from overconsumption to political discontent. The poet of his fall tour is packed with lush singles that explore his insecurities and doubts, as well as his knack for combining social satire on the mores of modern life, from overconsumption to political discontent. The day-time show he is currently on is usually packed and is known as perhaps the most well-executed music show of the year. He now has the freedom to change his lyrics as he sees fit, and has become one of the most recognized and influential musicians of our time.

Whether you spent all summer working at your job or internship, or getting some well-deserved rest, hopefully you had time to enjoy all the music you wanted to. We provide a creative, empowering, and therapeutic environment that supports individuals recovering from eating, exercise, and body image issues. We invite you to call us for a free consultation. Please visit our website centralcoasttreatmentcenter.com or call 805-688-5057.

Father John Misty takes on a new role in the indie world. He has never been one to censor himself, but a shift in his focus is clear: He is looking outward more than anything else. His latest project, Pure Comedy, is an intimate and personal look at modern life, from overconsumption to political discontent. The poet of his fall tour is packed with lush singles that explore his insecurities and doubts, as well as his knack for combining social satire on the mores of modern life, from overconsumption to political discontent. The day-time show he is currently on is usually packed and is known as perhaps the most well-executed music show of the year. He now has the freedom to change his lyrics as he sees fit, and has become one of the most recognized and influential musicians of our time.
2017 is looking to be the year of the poke invasion. With both Pokirito and PokeCeviche opening their doors recently, it seems a trend may be on the rise. Commonly associated with pizza and burgers, Isla Vista may be looking at a new contender in the food war.

Pokirito made its way to Isla Vista last week. Located between Ike’s and Spudnuts on Seville, it offers a promotional 20 percent off to customers in its first week of business. It’s the latest addition to the poke invasion, and Pokirito is already setting itself apart from the rest.

Walking in today, I was immediately pleased with the overall appearance of the place. The restaurant was nicely lit and every inch well-utilized, giving off the glow giving it a retro and fresh vibe. The outline is simple enough; similar to most restaurants in IV it is build vacated Jimmy John’s location. On the Tuesday night I visited, I can definitely see Pokirito cementing its place in the stomachs of Isla Vista customers.

Another new entrant gracing the streets of Isla Vista is PokeCeviche. The new restaurant filled the recently-vacated, nearby, Jake’s location. On the Tuesday night before class began the restaurant is busy. Sunny lights glow giving it a sunny and fresh vibe. The outline is simple enough, similar to other restaurants in IV it is build to build you own, and they offer a few signature bowls for those not wanting to get creative and then a plethora of proteins, toppings, sauces and seasonings.

I opted for the signature sushi poke bowl but substituted the poke ceviche for the scallop and avocado option. Let’s talk about their ceviche as well, because this is not a standard ingredient in poke bowls. Although raw fish is a key component for the dish, ceviche is traditionally a Hispanic delicacy. The dish, while unfamiliar, certainly delivered great flavor. The mix consisted of the sweetness of the teriyaki chicken in a subtle yet efficient manner and highlighted theahi tuna in the second half. The dish was gone in no time, no scrap left unaccounted for. Entering as a first time poke eater, there’s no doubt the dish will quickly grow to become a familiar favorite. I can definitely see Pokirito converting its place in the stomachs of Isla Vista customers.

Prepared with nori seaweed and sushi rice, the wrap was very sushi-like in terms of appearance. However, it was on a grander scale like a burrito, keeping true to their fusion namesake. The dish, while unfamiliar, certainly delivered great flavor. The mix consisted of the sweetness of the teriyaki chicken in a subtle yet efficient manner and highlighted the ahi tuna in the second half. The dish was gone in no time, no scrap left unaccounted for. Entering as a first time poke eater, there’s no doubt the dish will quickly grow to become a familiar favorite. I can definitely see Pokirito converting its place in the stomachs of Isla Vista customers.

The server was very friendly and accommodating the entire time. She took the time to explain the different options available as we moved down the line, which was very helpful especially for a poke virgin like myself! After selecting my choice of protein, sides and toppings, my order was ready. Prepared with seasoned rice and sushi vinegar, the wrap was very sushi-like in terms of appearance. However, it was on a grander scale like a burrito, keeping true to their fusion namesake.

I decided to double up so I could try two proteins in my wrap. I decided to double up so I could try two proteins in my wrap. I decided to double up so I could try two proteins in my wrap. The dish, while unfamiliar, certainly delivered great flavor. The mix consisted of the sweetness of the teriyaki chicken in a subtle yet efficient manner and highlighted the ahi tuna in the second half. The dish was gone in no time, no scrap left unaccounted for. Entering as a first time poke eater, there’s no doubt the dish will quickly grow to become a familiar favorite. I can definitely see Pokirito converting its place in the stomachs of Isla Vista customers.

Overall the restaurant wasn’t my favorite place to dine. Although it is a quick way to add the SoCal cuisine into this new trend, and I believe it is for the better. The marinated fish now poke a stronger punch of flavor taking the often subtle fish flavor and cranking it up a notch. Combined with the other mild ingredients it creates a blend of two culinary worlds that really ends up being a harmonious meal.

Overall the restaurant wasn’t my favorite place to dine. Although it is a quick way to add the SoCal cuisine into this new trend, and I believe it is for the better. The marinated fish now poke a stronger punch of flavor taking the often subtle fish flavor and cranking it up a notch. Combined with the other mild ingredients it creates a blend of two culinary worlds that really ends up being a harmonious meal.

The inclusion of ceviche into a poke bowl is a unique way to add the SoCal cuisine into this new trend, and I believe it is for the better. The marinated fish now poke a stronger punch of flavor taking the often subtle fish flavor and cranking it up a notch. Combined with the other mild ingredients it creates a blend of two culinary worlds that really ends up being a harmonious meal.

The inclusion of ceviche into a poke bowl is a unique way to add the SoCal cuisine into this new trend, and I believe it is for the better. The marinated fish now poke a stronger punch of flavor taking the often subtle fish flavor and cranking it up a notch. Combined with the other mild ingredients it creates a blend of two culinary worlds that really ends up being a harmonious meal.

This inclusion of ceviche into a poke bowl is a unique way to add the SoCal cuisine into this new trend, and I believe it is for the better. The marinated fish now poke a stronger punch of flavor taking the often subtle fish flavor and cranking it up a notch. Combined with the other mild ingredients it creates a blend of two culinary worlds that really ends up being a harmonious meal.

The inclusion of ceviche into a poke bowl is a unique way to add the SoCal cuisine into this new trend, and I believe it is for the better. The marinated fish now poke a stronger punch of flavor taking the often subtle fish flavor and cranking it up a notch. Combined with the other mild ingredients it creates a blend of two culinary worlds that really ends up being a harmonious meal.

How to make Pinterest-perfect recipes with ease

Ingredients:

- 1 packet frozen acai berry blend
- ⅓ cup raspberries
- 1⅓ cup blueberries
- 1 packet frozen acai berry blend
- ⅓ cup blueberries
- ⅓ cup blackberries
- ⅓ cup almond milk
- 1 tbsp. chia seeds
- ⅓ cup blackberries
- ⅓ cup spinach
- ⅓ cup walnuts

Directions: Blend the frozen acai packet, berries and almond milk until mixture is smooth. Feel free to top the blender at times and break down the mixture as needed. Transfer to a bowl and top with as many chia seeds, granola crumbles and berries as you desire. Beyond being incredibly easy to make, acai bowls are extremely nutritious. Feel free to get creative, switching out the berries or adding extra toppings according to your personal taste. Do not forget to snap a picture before tasting, and remember to post a picture of your beautiful, aesthetically pleasing creation for your followers to admire! No more dragging yourself out of bed for Blenders in the morning for breakfast!
Larvae Survival: Dig, Duck, Dip, Dive and Dig

Stephanie Perrin
Science Editor

While any household views fruit flies as an annoying pest, their behavior when searching for food has piqued the interest of UC Santa Barbara scientists. In order to develop into a fruit fly, the decapitated Drosophila larva must gain an enormous amount of weight very quickly. Often, their motivation to feed is fed by sensory cues.

To fully understand the larva decision-making process, UCSC researchers and collaborators from the Center for Genomic Regulation (CRG) in Barcelona with corresponding author, reported, “We wanted to explore the capabilities of these larvae in metamorphic systems. We know they have a tendency to move toward food when there’s an attractive odor, so we designed the vivarium to mimic the conditions of decaying fruit, larvae’s favorite meal.”

The researchers examined how the dire conditions are filtered by physical and sensory signals. They first analyzed the effect of hypoxia on feeding behavior. By partially blocking the respiratory tracks of larvae, they found evidence that the level of oxygenation determines the tendency of larvae to dive. This result suggests that diving is regulated by a cost-benefit balance, which combines internal physiological signals, such as starvation levels and possibly hunger, with external cues, like the presence of food.

They then studied the effect of the hardness of the hydrogel on the control of diving behavior. They asked whether the detection of an attractive odor was needed for larvae to dig and dive. In line with the idea that diving relies on a cost-benefit balance, they found that larvae detected the presence of food and then dug and dived.

In order to study this process and analyze food searching behavior and, more specifically, to promote diving, the researchers determined that larvae perceive and respond to liquid-based odorant molecules. In line with the idea that diving relies on a cost-benefit balance, they found that the larvae increased their diving upon detection of an attractive odor.

By partially blocking the respiratory tracks of larvae, they found evidence that the level of oxygenation determines the tendency of larvae to dive. This result suggests that diving is regulated by a cost-benefit balance, which combines internal physiological signals, such as starvation levels and possibly hunger, with external cues, like the presence of food.

The researchers then compared the dig-and-dive behavior of D. melanogaster with the presence of toxic compounds in overripe fruits. In both D. melanogaster and D. suzukii, the larvae’s perception of toxicity resulted in the avoidance of the fruit.

The researchers found growing evidence that wildlife loss often has stronger effects in low-productivity areas, which normally exist in areas with complex climatic shifts. They hypothesized that these disturbances would have interactive effects on disease risk. The research suggests that large mammal conservation may prevent increases in tick abundance and tick-borne disease risk. The research was supported by grants from the National Geographic Society, the National Science Foundation, the Marine Animal Foundation and the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada. The full report appears in the Proceedings of the Royal Society B.

Above is a picture of Grevy’s zebras that were kept in one of the four enclosures at the Mpala Research Centre in Kenya. Although they are not megafauna, when animals as large as them were gone, the researchers found growing evidence that wildlife loss often has stronger effects in low-productivity areas, which normally exist in areas with complex climatic shifts.

Both large wildlife loss and climatic change can independently influence tick abundance and tick-borne disease risk. These results are timely and relevant in light of widespread wildlife declines and unpredictable regional climatic shifts in a steadily warming world.

Our research suggests that large mammal conservation may prevent increases in tick abundance and tick-borne disease risk. These results are timely and relevant in light of widespread wildlife declines and unpredictable regional climatic shifts in a steadily warming world.

"We’ve shown these interacting effects increase disease risk, but they also highlight the need to incorporate ecological context when making predictions about the effects of wildlife loss on epidemic dynamics," Young said.

According to Hillary Young, an EEMB associate professor and Tikotms’ advisor, this suggests that conservationists should respond to wildlife loss and climate change in proportion to total tick abundance.

"We’ve shown the interacting effects increase disease risk, but they also highlight the need to incorporate ecological context when making predictions about the effects of wildlife loss on epidemic dynamics," Young said.

Their findings were supported by grants from the National Geographic Society, the National Science Foundation, the Marine Animal Foundation and the National Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada. The full report appears in the Proceedings of the Royal Society B.

Tick Populations Affected by Wildlife Loss and Climate Change

Stephanie Perrin
Science Editor

Both large wildlife loss and climatic change can independently influence tick abundance and disease risk. Ticks, which normally exist in regions with unpredictable conditions, are particularly prone to these changes.

The researchers found growing evidence that wildlife loss often has stronger effects in low-productivity areas, which normally exist in areas with complex climatic shifts. They hypothesized that these disturbances would have interactive effects on disease risk.

"Our research suggests that large mammal conservation may prevent increases in tick abundance and tick-borne disease risk. These results are timely and relevant in light of widespread wildlife declines and unpredictable regional climatic shifts in a steadily warming world," Young said.

According to Hillary Young, an EEMB associate professor and Tikotms’ advisor, this suggests that conservationists should respond to wildlife loss and climate change in proportion to total tick abundance.

"We’ve shown the interacting effects increase disease risk, but they also highlight the need to incorporate ecological context when making predictions about the effects of wildlife loss on epidemic dynamics," Young said.

Their findings were supported by grants from the National Geographic Society, the National Science Foundation, the Marine Animal Foundation and the National Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada. The full report appears in the Proceedings of the Royal Society B.

Tick Populations Affected by Wildlife Loss and Climate Change

Stephanie Perrin
Science Editor

Both large wildlife loss and climatic change can independently influence tick abundance and disease risk. Ticks, which normally exist in regions with unpredictable conditions, are particularly prone to these changes.
It is difficult to start a conversation about the president without roundinguppstereotypes. Every week he grows as new reasons to call him unhinged, unprepared and unreliable, yet these messages are not having an effect. It is impossible to stem or even explain the effects of “Teflon Don” if nothing that is said about him sticks. Effect. It is impossible to impeach or even erode support for Donald Trump great again. His summer campaign of repealing the Affordable Care Act and replacing it with one of any one several worse variants is even more devastating to Americans. The latest variant, the Graham-Cassidy Bill, essentially hands all the power back to the insurance companies and allows them to exploit the system since again. Healthcare is tough task, but it makes sense to repeal a still-working system without having a viable replacement option. The CBO estimates that millions of Americans would lose coverage under the new bill. Make no mistake about it: The Affordable Care Act has saved many lives, and taking it away as well as sentencing many to death. Trump's most recent attack on predominately African-American athletes peacefully protesting police brutality against African Americans has been incredibly divisive. At its core, it is clearly a play to create the divisiveness and discord regarding Puerto Rico. But the disconnect between taking a knee during the national anthem and the heroic actions that happened in Charlottesville could not be wider. The fact that the president reduced the individuals protesting against excessive police violence and racial inequality to “Kneeling bitches” is incredibly telling of the psychological id of this current administration. Let us be clear: These athletes are not protesting the national anthem or the military but rather the long-standing marginalization of this current administration.

The message that artists like Minaj and Cardi B are sending is that women should look to no one but themselves for validation. They have the ability to not only be equal with men, but also to gain power over men. They don’t need and don’t even want the approval, but the reality is that she still craves validation from a man and will accept subpar treatment to get it.

The most talented artists use music as a means of self-expression and as a means of sharing their emotions. A song can have a voice. Music can capture the atmosphere for a particular moment, and it can shape the truth in a way that cannot be easily conveyed through words. Music can give us the courage to speak out against injustice, and it can bring us together during times of tragedy.

Another example of how morally bankrupt this administration is the ordeal with DACA. At its core, DACA allowed people who came here as children to live and work in the only country they have ever known. It took an enormous amount of courage to fight the federal government, and that trust was betrayed under Trump. This administration used 800,000 lives as a political pawn in a bid to gain funding for the border wall. He was playing chicken and he did not care if he raised 800,000 lives (and as a far lesser note of importance, he did not consider the economic repercussions). All that this presidency cared about was getting its absolutely moronic vanity project done.

It was never about “Making America Great Again.” It was about making Donald Trump great again.

The most talented artists use music as a means of self-expression and as a means of sharing their emotions. A song can have a voice. Music can capture the atmosphere for a particular moment, and it can shape the truth in a way that cannot be easily conveyed through words. Music can give us the courage to speak out against injustice, and it can bring us together during times of tragedy. The most talented artists use music as a means of self-expression and as a means of sharing their emotions. A song can have a voice. Music can capture the atmosphere for a particular moment, and it can shape the truth in a way that cannot be easily conveyed through words. Music can give us the courage to speak out against injustice, and it can bring us together during times of tragedy.

The message that artists like Minaj and Cardi B are sending is that women should look to no one but themselves for validation. They have the ability to not only be equal with men, but also to gain power over men. They don’t need and don’t even want the approval, but the reality is that she still craves validation from a man and will accept subpar treatment to get it.

The most talented artists use music as a means of self-expression and as a means of sharing their emotions. A song can have a voice. Music can capture the atmosphere for a particular moment, and it can shape the truth in a way that cannot be easily conveyed through words. Music can give us the courage to speak out against injustice, and it can bring us together during times of tragedy.

The message that artists like Minaj and Cardi B are sending is that women should look to no one but themselves for validation. They have the ability to not only be equal with men, but also to gain power over men. They don’t need and don’t even want the approval, but the reality is that she still craves validation from a man and will accept subpar treatment to get it.

The most talented artists use music as a means of self-expression and as a means of sharing their emotions. A song can have a voice. Music can capture the atmosphere for a particular moment, and it can shape the truth in a way that cannot be easily conveyed through words. Music can give us the courage to speak out against injustice, and it can bring us together during times of tragedy.

The message that artists like Minaj and Cardi B are sending is that women should look to no one but themselves for validation. They have the ability to not only be equal with men, but also to gain power over men. They don’t need and don’t even want the approval, but the reality is that she still craves validation from a man and will accept subpar treatment to get it.

The most talented artists use music as a means of self-expression and as a means of sharing their emotions. A song can have a voice. Music can capture the atmosphere for a particular moment, and it can shape the truth in a way that cannot be easily conveyed through words. Music can give us the courage to speak out against injustice, and it can bring us together during times of tragedy.

The message that artists like Minaj and Cardi B are sending is that women should look to no one but themselves for validation. They have the ability to not only be equal with men, but also to gain power over men. They don’t need and don’t even want the approval, but the reality is that she still craves validation from a man and will accept subpar treatment to get it.

The most talented artists use music as a means of self-expression and as a means of sharing their emotions. A song can have a voice. Music can capture the atmosphere for a particular moment, and it can shape the truth in a way that cannot be easily conveyed through words. Music can give us the courage to speak out against injustice, and it can bring us together during times of tragedy.

The message that artists like Minaj and Cardi B are sending is that women should look to no one but themselves for validation. They have the ability to not only be equal with men, but also to gain power over men. They don’t need and don’t even want the approval, but the reality is that she still craves validation from a man and will accept subpar treatment to get it.

The most talented artists use music as a means of self-expression and as a means of sharing their emotions. A song can have a voice. Music can capture the atmosphere for a particular moment, and it can shape the truth in a way that cannot be easily conveyed through words. Music can give us the courage to speak out against injustice, and it can bring us together during times of tragedy.

The message that artists like Minaj and Cardi B are sending is that women should look to no one but themselves for validation. They have the ability to not only be equal with men, but also to gain power over men. They don’t need and don’t even want the approval, but the reality is that she still craves validation from a man and will accept subpar treatment to get it.

The most talented artists use music as a means of self-expression and as a means of sharing their emotions. A song can have a voice. Music can capture the atmosphere for a particular moment, and it can shape the truth in a way that cannot be easily conveyed through words. Music can give us the courage to speak out against injustice, and it can bring us together during times of tragedy.

The message that artists like Minaj and Cardi B are sending is that women should look to no one but themselves for validation. They have the ability to not only be equal with men, but also to gain power over men. They don’t need and don’t even want the approval, but the reality is that she still craves validation from a man and will accept subpar treatment to get it.

The most talented artists use music as a means of self-expression and as a means of sharing their emotions. A song can have a voice. Music can capture the atmosphere for a particular moment, and it can shape the truth in a way that cannot be easily conveyed through words. Music can give us the courage to speak out against injustice, and it can bring us together during times of tragedy.

The message that artists like Minaj and Cardi B are sending is that women should look to no one but themselves for validation. They have the ability to not only be equal with men, but also to gain power over men. They don’t need and don’t even want the approval, but the reality is that she still craves validation from a man and will accept subpar treatment to get it.

The most talented artists use music as a means of self-expression and as a means of sharing their emotions. A song can have a voice. Music can capture the atmosphere for a particular moment, and it can shape the truth in a way that cannot be easily conveyed through words. Music can give us the courage to speak out against injustice, and it can bring us together during times of tragedy.